

Dhurba Rizal, Ph. D.

drdrizal@yahoo.com; drdrizal@hotmail.com

Dr. Dhurba Rizal is a Scholar-Practitioner and Specialist in Conflict and Development, Security, Violence, Governance and Peace, Public Administration, Project Monitoring and Evaluation, Environment and Climate Change and Vulnerability and Livelihood. He has had rich and varied experiences in the research, consultancy, training and teaching. He had held academic assignments in important institutions of various countries like the USA, Japan, Denmark, Netherlands, Nepal and the United Nations University in the capacity of Professor, Lecturer and Research Fellow. Presently, he is a Visiting Professor to the Universities in the USA, Europe, Southeast and South Asia. He has worked as International Consultant and Trainer for various National and International Organizations including the UNDESA, UNDP, Global Integrity and other UN Organizations in areas such as Governance, Integrity, Peace, Security, Conflict and Post Conflict, Conflict and Risk Assessment, Development, Decentralization, Human Resources and Human Development, Project Monitoring and Evaluation, Migration, Refugees, Environment and Climate Change and Vulnerability and Livelihood. He has to his credit several books and research articles. He is the author of Administrative System in Bhutan: Retrospect and Prospect, Bhutan: Decentralization and Good Governance, Project Management, Human Resource Management and Organization and Management and co-author of Understanding Development, Conflict and Violence: The Cases of Bhutan, Nepal, Northeast India and Chittagong Hill Tracts of Bangladesh. He has contributed a number of papers and articles to national and international Journals and other quality publications. His recent Journal articles published includes "The Unknown Refugee Crisis: Expulsion of the Ethnic Lhotsampa from Bhutan" published by Carfax Publishers, Taylor & Francis Ltd, UK in a Journal of Asian Ethnicity and "Maoist Violence and Elusive Peace in Nepal" published by Brandon University, Brandon, Manitoba, Canada in a Canadian Journal of Peace Studies. Presently, he is working on a book entitled "Governance in Conflict and Post Conflict Societies" and "The Changing Spectrum of Security, Development and Governance". His Research interests includes: Governance and Peace, Public Administration, Security, Conflict, Development, Decentralization, Democracy, Refugees and Migration, Ethics, Vulnerability and Livelihood, Environment and Climate Change, Human Resources and Human Development, Project Management, Regionalism and Globalization and South Asian and Southeast Asian affairs.